Orange County students met event speakers, Kent and Kyle Healy authors of “Cool Stuff they should teach in school” who shared the 10 steps used by successful entrepreneurs.

Representatives from the SBA and other business support groups provided students with handouts and business services.

Students used the exhibitors as a resource to gather the information necessary for a start up business.

Over 400 students attended the Entrepreneurship Forum from schools throughout Orange County

The crowd was energized when Kent Healy answered questions while walking into the audience.

Students took great interest in the college exhibitors who informed them of their class offerings and degree programs

Several students won a signed copy of the speaker's book "Cool Stuff they should teach in school."
